

ODE TO ST. JOE

Our "prison" walls gape
It's time to go free.
Our stay at St. Joe
Can no longer be.

But these who will follow
We envy them so.
Even though we've complained
We don't want to go.

For without old St. Joe
Tell us what we'd have done.
Although we protest
That there's been more work than fun.

"But that's what school's for,"
The teachers insist.
And true to their word
It's hard to resist.

Mathematical space figures
The grammatical rules
History's mysteries
Lab experiment tools

No eighth grade girl
Will ever forget
The plight of the lunchroom
That in September she met.

The boys at St. Joe
Will forever recall
Recess on the line
Outside the school hall.

And now we must go
New worlds to explore.
With thanks in our heart
We close St. Joe's door.

D'Arcy Lyness

Sister Mary Agnes

Sister Mary Agnes has brightened our views,
While teaching the latest Mathematical news.
She informs us of circles, triangles and squares,
While we sit glued to our broken chairs.

Although she is small, to her it's no matter.
She is still capable of stopping our chatter.
To get us to Hershey she worked very hard.
So to you, Sister Agnes, we give our regard.

Mrs. Brown

Mrs. Brown makes learning fun,
As she teaches Science to everyone.
We learn about levers, chemicals, and planes.
To teach them to us, she's taken great pains.

Mrs. Brown is one of our very best friends,
Advice to all of our problems she lends.
Knowledge she's given us by the crate-full,
So to you Mrs. Brown, we are deeply grateful.

Sister Corinne

Sister Corinne we will always remember.
Her smile, her walk, her voice so tender.
We seem to think she's an excellent teacher.
We also agree she's a terrific preacher.

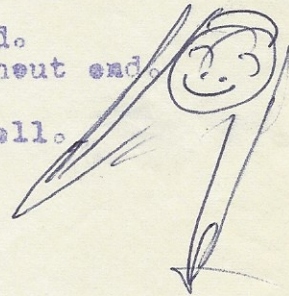

Lysel is Sister Corinne's best friend.
She sprays our germ-filled world without end.
Even though we hate Lysel's smell,
We thank you, Sister, for keeping us well.

Mrs. Stout

Mrs. Stout has taught us well.
She even taught us how to spell.
From her we learned our nouns and verbs.
But all this stuff is for the birds.

She did her best to make the year bright.
And the Junior High thinks she did it right.
She helped us with the Junior High Journal.
Now she has our thanks eternal.
